Excerpt from the breeding regulations:

a)The kennel name is the surname of the dog. The registration of a kennel name occurs upon request by the breeder who is endorsed by a favorable report of the chairman or breed warden of the local club, to which the applicant belongs. The request must contain three name suggestions in the order desired. The kennel name is protected for the applicant's lifetime and only for dogs bred by him/her. This protection ceases to exist if over a period of 10 years no litters were registered and if the breeder did not file a well-reasoned request for extension.
b)Transfer of a kennel name is permissible upon death of the breeder or among living persons, if the purchaser fulfills all the requirements necessary for an original registration ("Ersteintragung") of a kennel name and if the preservation of this kennel name in the interest of the shorthair breed. This will be in particular the case if past motherlines are continued and the breeding stock of the kennel is also transferred. A simple name transfer is inadmissible. The assigned kennel name is protected by the breed warden for the DK and is assigned to a breeder for strictly personal use.
c) The names of kennels, which have won a special meaning for the DK breed may never be assigned again. The Breed warden decides on a reassignment of a kennel name under which more than 20 litters were produced.
